Sheriff Scott White left on Sunday. Tuck Potter went away this morning. He is bound for Texas.

Charles A. Overlock returned yesterday from Mexico, where he has been purchasing cattle.

John Mobery, the converter boss, left Saturday morning for Sweden, where he will remain six months.

A. G. Matteson, representing the "Riviera," left on this morning's train for El Paso, where he goes in the interest of this paper.

There will not be any meeting of the Good Templars tonight out of respect to Joseph Miller, who will lecture at the Opera House this evening.

Mr. Porter Bender was an outgoing passenger this morning. The gentleman goes to El Paso to collect money due him as a result of a lawsuit recently decided in his favor against the Southern Pacific.

Peter Hansen is constructing a beer garden about a mile below Bisbee. It is to be thoroughly equipped, and situated as it will be amidst the shady cottonwood trees, it should make an ideal resort during the summer months.

The Copper Queen Library is undergoing a general renovation, repainting, change in architecture and many improvements that will add to the beauty of the building. The library is the finest on the Pacific Coast—maintained by the Copper Queen company for the use of its employees and the public in general.

Wyatt Earp, the well-known gun-fighter, who made his reputation in Tombstone in his wild and woolly days, was tracked out in San Francisco a few days ago by Tom Mulqueen, a well known horseman. Earp attempted to do the horseman, but this latter put it all over him and knocked him glassy eyed the first round. It is thought that Earp will try his gun the next time, but Mulqueen has been there before and Tombstone may head the funeral—Mobery Miner.

There was quite a rush to the Senate last night to view the World's Fair and the Union depot at St. Louis by electricity, the handicraft of Chris Finlayson, who has manufactured from lithographic prints something unique in the way of production. The hallucination is complete and attractive. While you can make yourself believe that you are about to enter the Union depot or take a stroll down Midway Pleasure, the constant jingle of the cash register reminds you with the idea that you are indeed there. Chris is always presenting a novelty of some kind.

Card of Thanks.

The committee of arrangements on the annual celebration of the Independent Order of Red Men, hereby extend their sincere thanks to all those who so generously contributed their efforts towards making the occasion the pleasant and memorable one it has been. The committee hopes that its friends will have many another opportunity to assist in the ceremonies of an order that has always endeavored to further the interests of the commonwealth.

A RICH STRIKE.

An Abundance of Good Ore Discovered Near Charleston.

A recent discovery of exceedingly rich ore near Charleston, Arizona, bids fair to bring that long dead camp into equal or greater prominence than that which it enjoyed in the palmy days of the eighties period. The Pittsburg-Arizona Gold and Copper Co. has developed a group of claims three-quarters of a mile from the one-time prosperous smelting town with the result of an unearthing of mineral that has astonished all those who have lived or traveled in that vicinity. The first of the claims, the Porto Rico, is situated three-quarters of a mile in an easterly direction from Charleston; beyond the Porto Rico in the following named order lie the "San Juan," "The Manila," "The Resurrection," "The Giant," "Santiago" and "Havana." The first named, "The Porto Rico," contains ore, samples of which, showing free gold in a porphyritic and quartz formation, are so rich as to cause surprise among all experienced mining men who have seen them. The "San Juan," which has received the most development of any of the claims, has yielded an ore pile of no mean dimensions, running high in gold silver and lead. The lead occurs both in sand and solid carbonates. A recent shipment of 620 pounds of this ore caused quite a sensation among the mining men who examined it.

The eastern line of the San Juan de Boquillas grant, runs from north to south through the San Juan. The claims have quite a romantic history. In the early fifties, Professor Bronca, a graduate of Freiburg University, Germany, a noted mineralogist and a veteran of the Mexican war, in the wanderings peculiar to his geological ilk happened upon the outcroppings of the present Arizona-Pittsburg group. Attracted by the apparent value of the claims, he endeavored to develop them, but on account of their remoteness from civilization and the crude methods at the command of miners in those days, the professor had made but small headway in his work, when the Apaches, after several bloody attempts, succeeded finally in wiping out of existence the German pioneer and his little force of miners. Several mounds show where the dead were buried after the several battles that were waged between the fierce aborigines and the courageous little band of palefaces. The Mexican inhabitants of that neighborhood long ago rumored that ghostly visitants had been seen about the adobe ruin in which Professor Bronca formerly had dwelt, and succeeding generations have enlarged upon the vague stories until at the present day there is firmly fixed in the sensorium of every Mexican in Charleston an unswerving belief that every night during the dark of the moon a weird band of spooks, arrayed in phosphorescent glow caper about in mad revel on the crumbling walls of the mouldering edifice. This belief in the visitation of supernatural beings has played no small part in keeping prospectors—naturally superstitious through their lives of solitude—from the site of what really seems about to become one of the rich mining properties of the southwest.

Many years after Professor Bronca's death Captain Jeffords—Indian agent at Apache Pass, now Fort Bowie—and Mr. DeLong made an attempt to work the group, but they were forced to abandon the project because of the hostile Apaches. From then on, the property was lost in the thin haze of rumor, although it is known that a couple of "chloriders" took several thousand dollars' worth of ore from the claims, and disappeared without returning to the property or describing its situation. From the departure of the chloriders the claims were abandoned and unknown until Mr. Fisher and Ben Bartlett, old and competent prospectors, camped during their wanderings on the ground in question, and with true prospector's instinct at once decided they had discovered a rich mine. They saw that the ground had been worked to a small extent, but after a thorough investigation they decided that the claims practically were virgin mines. On account of the lack of knowledge among prospectors concerning the situation of the property, the impossibility of its being thoroughly exploited by its original workers, and the compulsory end of all former development when the water level had been reached, the present locators concluded there was every probability of the existence of an extensive ore body beneath the superficial workings. By careful prospecting they have brought to the surface a few tons of the ore from the ledge, and have sent it to smelters with the gratifying result above noted.

Although it will require more capital than the present owners may readily command to put up a sufficient working fund for development, yet the owners have decided that they will avoid the error of many former discoverers of mineral treasure, and insist not only upon receiving a fair price for their property, but upon retaining a generous interest in the ground out of which they believe will come great riches. The personnel of the company is as follows:

Upton, secretary, with office at Tombstone. A representative of the REVIEW while traveling in that vicinity a few days ago was invited to look at the property, and was agreeably surprised by the rich ore stacked up on the several claims. They not only contain rich gold and silver ore carrying a heavy percentage of lead and copper, but the entire deposit is sprinkled with a red crystallization known as molybdenum, a mineral used extensively in the arts. Molybdenum commands a high price, because of its use in hardening the steel plates used in armored vessels. The ore contains every form of carbonate of lead, much of it being galena. The claims are situated close to the railroad, a condition that will contribute largely to their future successful development.

Do You Cough?

"I guess I used to be like everybody else. When I caught cold, I just let it take, thinking it would cure itself in a few days; of course the coughing and spitting of mucus sometimes lasted several weeks, but after a while the trouble would subside. I always noticed, however, that each cold was worse than the one before. My throat seemed to get weaker, and the least change in the weather started the coughing again. The last cold was the most severe of all. I was really frightened. Cough drops and home treatment did no good. A friend told me about Aker's English Remedy. I got a bottle, and you never saw the like of the way it acted. Before the bottle was gone I was well. My throat felt as strong and well as could be. Since then I have had no more trouble. I think Aker's English Remedy so strengthens the delicate lining of the throat that it easily resists the changes in temperature, and it builds up the constitution as well." (Signed) CANNON SCHWAB, 251 Gold St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Sold at 25c, 50c and $1 a bottle, throughout the United States and Canada; and in England, at 1s. 2d., 2s. 3d., 4s. 6d. If you are not satisfied after buying, return the bottle to your druggist, and get your money back. We guarantee the above guarantee. W. H. HOOKER & CO., Proprietors, New York.
